Tech Tips: MS Teams Meetings

A free alternative to Facebook, Skype, WhatsApp or Zoom for those interested in video chatting with others is Microsoft Teams, also known as a Teams Meeting. The meeting can be hosted by anyone with a free Microsoft account, and attended by anyone who has been given the link. You can create a free Microsoft account by registering your email, with a password of your choice, at signup.live.com/.

One disadvantage of Teams compared to Zoom appears to be that only people using the Teams App (which requires an account) can use the "gallery" or grid view to see multiple people at once on one screen. Using the browser link to join the meeting only allows "speaker view", which shows only the person who is currently speaking (or coughing, or tapping the desk...). Also we hear Apple device users may have trouble using Teams in certain browsers, so the App is recommended in that case. See an overview at teamsdemo.office.com
